

MIDWIFERY

Weekly Newsletters (May 30 - June 5, 2021)

THEME

Rh negative mothers with reject an Rh positive baby during pregnancy, but the development of the treatment RhoGAM, prevents this immune response in pregnant women.

METAPHOR

Just like an untreated Rh negative mother with an Rh positive fetus, we tend to reject constructive criticism. But coming from the right person we should seek it, welcome it, receive it, and learn from it rather than take it personally or get defensive.

INSPIRATION

Dilan Chauhan didn't let societal gender bias discourage him from pursuing the career dream he had since he was 15, midwifery. As a first generation college graduate and child of immigrants he inspires others to pursue their passion!

CAREERS

A certified nurse-midwife (CNM) is a licensed healthcare professional specializing in women's reproductive health and childbirth, performing annual exams, providing counseling, and writing prescriptions. As of 2010, CNMs now need a graduate degree in addition to a bachelor of science degree in nursing and licensure.

TIPS

Contrary to popular belief, 94% of all CNM attended births occurred in hospitals (only 2.5% in homes). So be careful not to entertain or eliminate a career based on false or out-of-date information!

INTERVIEW PREP

Here is a typical interview question for an aspiring midwife, "How would you deal with a difficult partner of someone giving birth?"

CONTACT SSCC

For help picking or pursuing a career, contact Dr. Cassie Briggs at Success in Science Career Coaching. She specializes in helping high-school thru grad/professional students succeed in STEM.

Website: successinscienceCC.com

Email: cassie@successinscienceCC.com

Phone: (313) 242-7131

